Okinawa Coming out Chronicles "Mama" Katsuki's Hug-Filled Road Trip

Okinawa Coming Out Chronicles, "Mama" Katsuki's Hug-Filled Road Trip is a documentary that closely follows "Mama" Katsuki's coming out journey. Mama Katsuki is the owner of the "Bar Kusuo" in Tokyo's gay town, Shinjuku Ni-chome. He left his hometown in Okinawa in his late twenties and moved to Tokyo, in pursuit of being true to himself. He finally decided to come out to his parents 10 years after he left home.

Today, he can finally say he is on good terms with his family, but it took many conversations to reach this point. This movie follows him as he visits his hometown of Naha in Okinawa, looks back on the time when he came out and talks with family and friends who open about their true feelings to him.
